The idea here is that the new rule analyzer can output rules in json. It's quite incomplete at this stage, but when it is complete it would make sense to accept this output as input as well.