python: ensure proper shabang on python scripts

When installing python scripts, distutils would use the python used to run setup.py as shebang for the scripts it installs.

However, when cross-compiling, this is most often not correct.

Instead, using '/usr/bin/env python' is guaranteed to find the proper python in the PATH, so we need to instruct setup.py to use that as the executable.