libhtp normalizes the http.header_names buffer, as it resides in a structure that does not allow duplicates.

As someone inspecting Wireshark packet traffic may be expecting something different when writing a rule, make this behavior clear on our documentation.